KN19653 – US-95, W.M.&I. RR Bridge, Latah Co, Bridge #18535

KN19195 – US-95, Deep Creek Bridge, Latah Co, Bridge #18545, KN19526 – US-95, Jct SH-6 Turnbay, Latah Co. and KN19653 – US-95, W.M.&I. RR Bridge, Latah Co, Bridge #18535 are companion projects adjacent to each other. These are companioned to help match the profile from the bridge to the profile going into the adjacent roadway, as well as limiting the impact to the public. The projects are programmed in FY 2020.

The Deep Creek Bridge, located at MP 361.541, consists of replacing the existing 26' x 50.67' structure that was built in 1939. The design roadway section intent for the new bridge consists of two 12' lanes, a 12' future turn lane and two 6' shoulders. It is envisioned to construct the structure in stages.

The WMI RR Bridge, located at MP 360.460, consists of replacing the existing bridge structure. The proposed structure will be dictated based upon the requirements for the left hand turn lane and the proposed alignment of US-95.

A left hand turnbay is proposed for northbound traffic from US-95 onto SH-6 at MP 360.55. This will increase the safety of the turning movements and reduce traffic delays caused by turning traffic. To be investigated along with the proposed turnbay, is the possibility, along with costs and impacts, of increasing the design speed for that corner from a 55 mph design speed to a 65 mph design speed. The US-95 corridor in that area is slated to eventually be a 65 mph corridor. To increase the design speed will impact the turnbay design as well as the WMI Bridge size, skew, etc... This will be a part of the conceptual plan / preliminary engineering for this job.

The following tasks represent individual services to be provided by the consultant:

- a. Roadway Design
