Safety Share

Engaged driving; the right thing to do.

Driving while using a handheld mobile electronic device is a traffic infraction (§49-1401A, Idaho Code) and carries a fine of $75 for the first offense, with increased fines and penalties for additional violations during a three-year period which could result in higher insurance rates and even the temporary suspension of your driver's license.

Did you know?

In the time it takes to read a text at 55 mph, you travel the length of a football field.

Your mind can remain distracted up to 27 seconds after reading a text.

Distracted driving crashes are 100% preventable.

Make the Shift.

Pulling over for calls allows you to give undivided attention to the road AND the caller.

Planning your route in advance frees up your mind for the drive.

Meals are more enjoyable outside of the car.

Don't be afraid to speak up from the passenger seat.

Pets belong in the back seat, not in your lap.

Distracted driving? Not on my squatch.
